Feature Artist Jeannette Cuevas

Jeannette's original fascination with art came to life while watching her father paint at their dining room table.

Later, equipped with a degree in Art Education, she became a graphic designer for some 20 years. Her background in commercial art developed a strong sense of design but life in a small town propelled her to paint the people around her.

Jeannette originally painted with watercolor but eventually incorporated her love of pastels with it. "The two mediums glow together creating a sense of movement, an energy." To read the complete bio go to www.jeannettecuevas.com.
